

Joyce J. FITZPATRICK

Joyce J. Fitzpatrick, PhD, MBA, RN, FAAN is Professor of Nursing, Bolton School of Nursing, Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland Ohio, USA and Adjunct Professor, Department of Geriatrics, Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York, NY. Dr. Fitzpatrick also chairs the Global Advisory Committee for the Center for Nursing Research and Education, Mount Sinai School of Medicine. She holds a BSN in nursing from Georgetown University, a master's degree in psychiatric mental health nursing from Ohio State, a PhD in nursing from New York University and an MBA from Case Western Reserve. At the national level, she currently serves as chair of the American Nurses Foundation. She has provided consultation to several schools of nursing and health care organizations globally. Dr. Fitzpatrick is widely published in nursing and health care literature with over 300 publications, including 65 books. She has recently published two books: Nursing Leadership: Views from the Outside, perspectives on nursing leadership from health care leaders from related disciplines and Advancing Professional Nursing Practice, focused on integrating Relationship Based Care and the American Nurses Association Standards of Professional Nursing Practice and Professional Nursing Performance.