

Brief Bio: Dr Raymond Wong

Dr Raymond Wong is Consultant of the Department of Medicine & Therapeutics, Prince of Wales Hospital. He is also an Honorary Clinical Associate Professor of the Chinese University of Hong Kong

Dr. Wong received his medical degree from the Chinese University of Hong Kong and completed his training in Internal Medicine, Haematology & Haematological Oncology as well as Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics at the Prince of Wales Hospital, Hong Kong. He has also gained a Doctor of Medicine of the Chinese University of Hong Kong.

Dr. Wong joined the Prince of Wales Hospital Poison Treatment Centre since its establishment in 2005. He is also a member of the Division of Clinical Pharmacology, Department of Medicine and Therapeutics, Prince of Wales Hospital. Apart from patient care, Dr Wong is also involved in various working groups, organizing educational seminars and publishing academic articles in Clinical Pharmacology and Toxicology.