Wards in the Main Block of the Prince of Wales Hospital will have new names from 2 January 2010

The Prince of Wales Hospital (PWH) new extension, the Main Clinical Block and Trauma Centre was expected to be operational in October 2010.

‘The wards in the new building would be given names of A, B, C and D. To avoid confusion, the hospital has arranged for the existing wards currently named A, B, C and D to take on a new name first, so as to give staff, patients, and visitors a period of adjustment,’ the hospital spokesperson said.

The names of wards in the Prince of Wales Hospital (PWH) would change from A, B, C and D to H, K, L and M with effect from 2 January 2010, for instance the ward currently named 8 A would be named 8 H and the ward 5B would be named 5 K.

Posters and notices had been posted up in the hospital to inform the public of such changes.
